

European Journalism Centre

This is to inform you that we just opened the applications for our Google News Initiative Fellowship.

They are paid summer placements for journalism, technology or design students who want to gain valuable work experience in leading newsrooms across Europe. In the Czech Republic, there is one newsroom participating: Czech Radio/ Samizdat.cz. It's a great opportunity that can allow your students to kickstart a career in the data science and web development industry.

This is Ana Salinas from the European Journalism Centre. We are a non-profit institution, organising free training opportunities, handbooks, online courses and events for both established and aspiring journalists.

On our website, you can find all the info about the programme and the participating newsrooms.

If you think that is something your students might be interested in, it would be great if you would share this message with them via your internal channels!

Under the following link you will find some materials that you can use to share this opportunity in your channels:

- a one-pager with all information for students
- a poster PDF (file)
- visuals for social media
- the hashtag #GNIFellowship

Last but not least! A link to our newsletter: ‘100 paths to journalism’

An easy way for your students to stay up to date with the information about the fellowship.

Please don't hesitate to contact us in case of any questions! In case you're not the right person to contact with this query, it would be great if you could forward this message.

I hope to hear from you soon!

Ana Salinas from EJC

====

Ana Maria Salinas | Project Manager | European Journalism Centre

Visit: EJC.net | Blog

Join: Twitter | Newsletters

Tel. : +31.433.254.030 | Address